

good in the pruning of the colossal salaries of those "higher up." Mr. McCarty, for instance, who was getting $100,000 a year and who has decided to take $75,000.

Louis A. Postingham, the Republican candidate for mayor of Boston, does not disclose that when he gets through being mayor of that city he wants to be governor of the state. The next steps are not stated, but it is reasonable to suppose that a young man with such ambitions would have ambition enough to mount higher.

DEVELOPMENT PROMISED AT BETHEL.

The opening up of the railroad to the granite quarries in Bethel, which is promised very shortly now, ought to result in considerable development of that section. For three years, or, in fact, since the uncovering of Bethel granite, the quarries have been dependent on teams to haul the rough product for a distance of five miles to the railroad or to the finishing plants. That method is exceedingly slow and laborious, as Barre granite men know, and at times the roads are in such condition because of the action of the frost, combined with the cutting by the wheels of the wagons, that it is practically impossible to travel. During such periods transportation has to stop, and the accumulations pile up at the quarry side, while the cutters are continually crying for more stock. Now that the railroad line is virtually completed, the difficulty will be bridged, and there will be no season of the year when the cutting plants will not have sufficient stock on hand, that is barring unusual conditions at the quarries, of course. The Bethel Granite railroad is modeled quite largely after the Barre railroad, but it is said that the grade is less, so that ordinary locomotives can be used, whereas specially constructed engines are considered necessary on the local line. The switchback method is, however, employed at Bethel, as at Barre. An interesting fact in connection with the Bethel granite quarrying is that two companies own practically the entire hill, from which stock is taken.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Yankees Women.
Mother—That young man comes much earlier now in the evenings, now, than he used to in the summer, doesn't he.
Daughter—Oh, yes, ma, but, you know, it gets dark so much earlier now.
Yankees Statesman.
Disappointed.
"Don't you know," said the young man who thinks he has unusual talents, "I sprained my throat the other day evening playing the cornet."
"Yes," replied his landlady, "and the neighbors sent their sympathy until they heard the truth."
"What truth?"
They thought you had sprained the cornet.—Chicago News.
